

Sermon Notes

Isaiah 53

December 27, 2015

Intended Christmas Consequences

If I tell you that I read ‘all of the Bible, you would expect that I indeed read every single page. Yet if I tell you that I read the Bible ‘all’ of the time, you would not expect that I literally spend every single moment of time reading. How can that be? Both are structured in a very similar way, in fact both include the same phrase: ‘all of the _____.’ The simplest answer is that the meaning of word “all” depends on a situational and contextual awareness of the whole passage. That being said, God is clear, in Isaiah 53:6, all means all and that’s all all means. Those three English letters compose a HUGE meaning for “all” of the readers of Scripture.

Digging Deeper in God’s Word

Let me emphasize we believe in a literal, grammatical, historical interpretation of the Scriptures. Here a few examples where “all” seems to mean something other than literally every single or possible thing/person. Mt 2:3; Mt. 3:5-6; Mt. 4:24; Lk. 2:1

*Pastor Bran Pierce.
Messages are accessible at www.gracepointfamily.com.
CD's are available by request.

Sermon Notes

Isaiah 53

December 27, 2015

Intended Christmas Consequences

If I tell you that I read ‘all of the Bible, you would expect that I indeed read every single page. Yet if I tell you that I read the Bible ‘all’ of the time, you would not expect that I literally spend every single moment of time reading. How can that be? Both are structured in a very similar way, in fact both include the same phrase: ‘all of the _____.’ The simplest answer is that the meaning of word “all” depends on a situational and contextual awareness of the whole passage. That being said, God is clear, in Isaiah 53:6, all means all and that’s all all means. Those three English letters compose a HUGE meaning for “all” of the readers of Scripture.

Digging Deeper in God’s Word

Let me emphasize we believe in a literal, grammatical, historical interpretation of the Scriptures. Here a few examples where “all” seems to mean something other than literally every single or possible thing/person. Mt 2:3; Mt. 3:5-6; Mt. 4:24; Lk. 2:1

*Pastor Bran Pierce.
Messages are accessible at www.gracepointfamily.com.
CD's are available by request.